

Ggd distribution box dimensions

Article Overview

Exact dimensions of GGD distribution boxes vary by model and manufacturer; typical cabinets are modular and customizable to project requirements.

Overview

GGD-type AC low-voltage distribution cabinets are designed for power plants, substations, industrial and mining enterprises, and other AC 50Hz power consumers. They operate at a rated voltage of 380V and a rated current up to 3150A-5000A, depending on the model . These cabinets are used for power conversion, distribution, and control of lighting and electrical equipment, and they comply with standards such as IEC 439 and GB 7251 .

Structural Features

- The cabinet body is modular, typically assembled from cold-formed steel sections with a universal frame design, allowing flexible combination and serialization .
- Cabinets include core functional compartments for circuit breakers and contactors, metering compartments for energy meters, and transformer compartments for current and voltage transformers .
- Cable entry can be from the top, bottom, left, right, or rear, depending on installation requirements .
- The design emphasizes high breaking capacity, thermal and dynamic stability, and high protection levels, often rated IP55 for dust and water resistance .
